DESIGN NOTES

Follow the customer across team boundaries

A review from the first claim to the support reply

Rupesh Kumar

Choose one complete task

1. Pick a task that crosses marketing, product and support.
2. Write where it starts and what finishing means.
3. Keep the same customer situation throughout the review.

Read the marketing promise

1. What is the customer told they can do?
2. What conditions or limits are explained?
3. What do they expect before opening the product?

DESIGN NOTES

Walk the product steps

1. Which part confirms that expectation?
2. Where does the person need information from another team?
3. What happens when the expected path fails?

DESIGN NOTES

Follow the support handoff

1. What information must the customer repeat?
2. What can the support person already see?
3. Does the reply explain the same rules as the product?

Name the gap between teams

1. Record the moment where expectations change.
2. Separate a missing explanation from a missing capability.
3. Choose an owner who can resolve the whole moment.

Check the revised path

1. Repeat the original customer task.
2. Keep the promise, product and support reply together.
3. Record what still needs explanation or another handoff.
